

UHCW Healthcare Musician Role

Role overview: Healthcare Musician

University Hospitals Coventry and Warwickshire (UHCW) and OPUS Music CIC are collaborating to develop and support a local, environmentally sustainable approach to music-making on the children's wards at UHCW.

We are recruiting four (4) experienced musicians who are curious about using music in a Children's hospital setting to support young people's wellbeing for a pilot programme. Successful applicants will join a structured training pathway to develop the skills and confidence needed to work safely and effectively within the Hospital's Children's clinical spaces which are situated at University Hospital, Coventry.

Healthcare Musicians work on wards using live, responsive music to support connection, wellbeing and human interaction. This is not traditional performance. It is about meeting people where they are and using music flexibly and sensitively to create moments of engagement, calm, stimulation or shared expression. The role complements clinical care by focusing on the cultural and social experience of young patients.

Although this recruitment is intentionally local, we are aware that there are talented musicians within the Coventry commuter belt. If this opportunity speaks to you, you have the essential skills and you are happy to travel to UHCW in Coventry, we would love to hear from you even if you live a little further away.

Main duties of the role

Healthcare Musician Purpose

Successful candidates will undertake training as Healthcare Musician which includes person centred practice, the practicalities and ethics of working in clinical environments and reflective practice. Alongside this training, they will begin to observe and gradually deliver ward-based music making.

As a Healthcare Musician, you will deliver live music on Children's hospital wards, responding to the needs, preferences and energy of patients, families and staff. You will initiate and shape musical interactions that may involve listening, improvising, singing, playing familiar songs or co-creating new music. Sessions may take place at the bedside, in shared bays or communal ward spaces.

You will build professional relationships with ward staff and work in line with all Trust policies, including infection prevention, safeguarding and confidentiality.

Working for our organisation

OPUS Music CIC (OPUS) is a Community Interest Company specialising in the use of music within health and social care, for the benefit of the health and wellbeing of patients, carers and health/care professionals.

We were created as a constituted, non profit-making organisation in 2000, established a specialism within Music in Healthcare practice in 2010, and became a Community Interest Company in 2012.

Our vision: Music as an intrinsic part of health and social care, everywhere.

Our mission: To champion the use of music to connect and transform the lives of all people within health and social care.

We work to create a culture where music within health and social care is embraced, and its value to the health and wellbeing of all people within these spaces is routinely recognised and promoted.

We are dedicated to gaining an increased understanding of, and working to remove, barriers for people and organisations to engage with music as a means to improved health and wellbeing.

We're proud that our focus on high quality practice has helped us build trusted partnerships with NHS Trusts across the UK. Our work is also recognised through our National Portfolio Organisation status with Arts Council England, supporting the ongoing development of OPUS and its programmes.

All OPUS Healthcare Musicians work to professional Standards and a dedicated Framework developed by OPUS Music CIC, ensuring consistent quality and safe, effective practice.

Please note that this pilot programme is with UHCW and, although OPUS will be engaging you as Healthcare Musicians to work on this pilot, you will be under an honorary contract with UHCW.

Detailed role description and main responsibilities

The UHCW Healthcare Musician in training will participate fully in the structured training programme and demonstrate a willingness to develop the specific skills required for Children's hospital-based practice.

As the training progresses, they will plan and deliver ward-based music making sessions, while remaining supported by online mentoring. Healthcare Musicians will use their skills to deliver up to ten responsive music sessions on Children's hospital wards from September 2026 to April 2027.

All Healthcare Musicians will complete mandatory training and always adhere to health and safety guidance. They will engage in ongoing reflection and professional development to ensure safe, compassionate and high-quality practice on the wards.

This training and mentoring will be delivered by OPUS Music CIC as part of a partnership with UHCW, partly funded by Youth Music.

Person Specification

We actively welcome applications from musicians of all backgrounds and lived experiences. The Hospital serves a richly varied community, with patients, families, visitors and staff from many cultures, identities and walks of life.

We want our Healthcare Musicians to reflect the breadth and character of the people who reside within the hospital each day. A range of perspectives, musical influences and personal experiences strengthens our work and helps us create meaningful and relevant connections on the wards.

If you feel your background or journey has shaped the way you relate to others through music, we would value hearing from you.

Essential:

Musical ability

- You have strong, hands-on experience of making music. Music is something you actively do and genuinely care about.
- You play a portable musical instrument and/or use voice with the flexibility to play/sing quietly when required. Wind instrument players need to have another option (which could include voice) should they need to deliver practice whilst wearing a mask.
- You can make music confidently without relying on written notation.
- You can create music with people who may not have any musical training.

Creative ability

- You are flexible in your music making and can adjust in the moment depending on how someone responds.
- You listen closely and can sense the mood and energy of individuals or groups.
- You understand what a person-centred approach means and why it matters in music making. If this is new to you, you are open to learning about it.
- You see music as a way to connect with people and are willing to use it in that way.

Interpersonal skills

- You understand that music can support someone's wellbeing.
- You feel open to adapting your approach to match a participant's behaviour and energy to build connection.
- You can separate yourself from the response to your music.
- You are open to allowing participants to influence and shape the music, rather than sticking rigidly to your own ideas.
- You are sensitive to the needs of a wide range of people, including those who may be vulnerable.
- You show empathy, patience, respect and consideration for others
- You are willing to complete all required training and follow guidance from the Music Manager and OPUS Music CIC's trainers/mentors.

Communication skills

- You can adapt how you communicate in sensitive situations, both through what you say and how you say it.
- You speak professionally with participants, including health and care staff.
- You have a warm, positive and approachable manner.
- You listen well and can follow clear direction.

Desirable:

Thinking and Reflection

- You are willing to try different techniques and approaches in order to support positive changes in a participant's health and wellbeing.

Desire to learn

- You have a genuine interest in music in health and care settings and the difference it can make to patient wellbeing.
- You value developing your knowledge and understanding in this area.

Musical ability

- You are able and willing to draw upon music from a range of influences.
- You have experience of global music traditions, with a commitment to reflecting and celebrating diverse cultural communities.

Geographic Location

- You live within a 30mile radius of University Hospital, Coventry
